

Self Assessment Smiley Faces

Many classteachers now encourage the children in their classes to assess their own work - have they achieved the 'WALT', 'WILF' or lesson objective? Are they happy with their work, or could they do better?

The following 'smiley faces' are for classroom display and help reinforce the need to self assess. At the end of each lesson, the children can stamp (or draw) a face and then add the mouth. If they are happy with their work they add a smile; if they aren't sure they add a straight line; and if they feel they need more help they can add a wiggly line. This may initially need a 'circle time' to introduce the faces and, from experience, everyone will initially always draw smiles for every lesson. However, this should settle down and quickly become an integral part of each lesson plenary.

Mike

This 'smiley face' assessment stamper allows children to stamp their own work and also helps keep the children's books a little neater.

They are attractively priced at £5.00 each.

- Put one on each table group!

Visit www.the-treasure-box.co.uk for full details

Easy Peasy Lemon Squeezy

I think I have achieved the lesson objective.

OK, I think!
Please will you check!

I'm not sure if I have achieved the lesson objective fully.

Uh oh!
I need a bit of help, please!

I haven't achieved the lesson objective yet.